FROM EXHAUSTED CARPENTER TO THRIVING BUSINESS OWNER

Ryan's story began like many in the building trade. After qualifying as a carpenter and then builder, he spent years on building sites, starting work at the crack of dawn and enduring physically demanding 10-hour days. By the time he got home, he would be too exhausted to enjoy the life he was building outside of work. As he and his wife Erika started thinking about their future, Ryan found himself questioning his career choices.

A chance encounter on the drive home from another long day on the tools sparked an idea. Ryan began exploring building inspections, initially taking on jobs in the evenings and weekends. The contrast was stark - in just a few hours, he could earn more than he did in a full day on-site. This side hustle quickly grew into a thriving business, allowing Ryan to leave the building sites behind.

Today, Ryan's life looks dramatically different. He's earning more while working fewer hours, giving him the freedom to design his schedule around what matters most.

This newfound flexibility has transformed his family life, allowing both Ryan and Erika to be present for all of life's important moments. They can adjust their work commitments as needed, ensuring they're always there when their children need them most.

Now, Ryan and Erika want to share this opportunity with others who might be looking for the freedom and flexibility that they themselves badly yearned for once upon a time...

“The transition from carpenter to business owner was smoother than I ever imagined.

With Homesafe Inspections, I've found a way to leverage my expertise, earn a great income, and still have time to surf on a Tuesday morning. It's a game-changer.”

~ Ryan | Founder, Homesafe Inspections
